

Executive Leadership Series

Discovery Session for Executive Leaders

Explore best practice techniques for delivering a consistent approach to delivering your business strategy.

Synopsis

This one-day program will help business partners understand the importance of strategy to their role and develop more strategic behaviours in the workplace.

The capacity to think, plan and act strategically is a core skill for executives. The challenge is to move from the specifics of day-to-day operational service delivery to the much bigger picture overview required in the strategic dimension of our work.

Course Topics

Our Discovery Session involves Strategic Thinking and Implementation as well as Action Planning. It includes communicating and 'selling' the vision and ensuring that it is successfully implemented.

- Explore best practice techniques for delivering a consistent approach to delivering our business strategy
- Analyse internal and external challenges out of their control and what is in their influence
- Prioritising the key values drivers of our role
- Build a Team Charter around behaviours and performance
- Creating Focus Plans for the next 30 , 60 and 90 days.
- Executive chairing and meeting skills
- Code of conduct/conflict of interest and ethical leadership
- Steering councils through major change and uncertainty
- Long-term strategic and financial planning
- Good governance and community leadership

The Trainer

Chip McKibben brings with him 18 years of experience in strategic thinking, leadership training and high-performance team coaching. He combines his experience as an Olympic athlete with his corporate experiences in Australia and the USA to provide support for business managers and leaders functioning within a high-performance environment.

His combination of skills helps to uncover a team's intangible capabilities and turn them into core behaviours. This not only provides a blueprint for success, but also establishes the key indicators for your team's future performance.
